April Commentary

Your Fund produced a return of +3.0% during the month compared to a return of +3.0% for the MSCI World Index NR (£).

Thus whilst 2017 will likely prove a record year for catastrophe losses, the underlying book value of the fund's holdings still grew by 10-11% on average.

We recently met Nick Martin, manager of Polar Capital Global Insurance, a fund held by Spectrum. With little exposure to the reinsurance and catastrophe market, the fund is designed to withstand the whims of Mother Nature. The portfolio is purposefully diversified with a focus on specialist commercial property and casualty insurers with a strong track record of profitable underwriting.

An improving price environment in parts of the market may result in value growth that could be even stronger over the next couple of years. US tax reforms are also proving helpful, especially given the fund's large weighting to US commercial line insurers. Rising interest rates and higher bond yields should be another tailwind for the portfolio. With the exception of companies such as Markel and Berkshire Hathaway, the majority of Nick Martin's holdings are in insurers with highly liquid and conservative investment books.

Investor sentiment will wax and wane. However, we remain confident that the Polar Capital Global Insurance Fund can continue to compound at a healthy rate over time.
