December Commentary

Your Fund returned +0.7% during the month compared to +3.3% for the FTSE All-Share Index (TR).

A return of +10.7% in 2019 was a respectable outcome in the context of the Fund's caution, with an equity weighting which remained below 40% throughout the year. All major asset classes delivered a positive return in 2019, more than retracing the de-rating that occurred in 2018. The single most important driver of this was monetary policy and, specifically, the Federal Reserve's reversal of its monetary tightening in 2018.

The global economy has also remained above water and looks set to continue on a positive tack for the time being. Trade tensions have abated since the summer and a global downturn looks to have been averted for now. The S&P 500 in the US has made a new high and valuations have returned to historically elevated levels. In an environment of near-zero interest rates however, a deterioration in cash flows will be the most likely cause of lower valuations.

Whilst our overall equity allocation remains broadly unchanged on 2018, 2019 also presented us with opportunities to improve the quality of our equity portfolio. We took advantage of bouts of weakness in the share prices of Medtronic and Alphabet to start holdings in two excellent businesses. We also took the opportunity to divest of several companies where we have less confidence in their future earnings power. The most recent of these has been the sale of a small holding in Imperial Oil. Energy is a non-core sector for us. We favour businesses whose ability to compound cash flows is underpinned by durable competitive advantages.
