March Commentary

Your Fund delivered a return of +3.0% during the month compared to +1.3% for the FTSE All-Share Index (TR). This return belies a volatile period with the VIX 'volatility' index setting a new 12-month high. Elevated geopolitical risk, rapidly rising energy prices and hawkish language from the Federal Reserve conspired to drive markets sharply lower in the early days of the month. However, equities made a robust recovery to finish the month in positive territory.

While US crude oil prices have retrenched towards $100 per barrel (WTI<sup>1</sup>) in the last few weeks, and tentative signs of de-escalation have emerged from Ukraine, the risks to investors have by no means disappeared. Reassuringly, UK corporates are generally in good shape and meetings we have had during the month with our portfolio companies support this view. Croda, a manufacturer of specialty chemicals for the pharmaceutical and beauty industries, is successfully passing on cost inflation through pricing, demonstrating the vital functionality and high value of its products. Customers such as L'Oreal and Unilever are turning to Croda's bio-based formulations to meet their own sustainability goals and to ensure their products remain relevant to consumers. We also had meetings with International Public Partnerships and 3i Infrastructure. Both infrastructure trusts have in-built inflation linkages across a number of their underlying assets and so are also able to protect investor returns in real terms.

In meetings with world-leading testing company Intertek and the UK pizza brand Domino's, both companies emphasised their respective returns to growth in recent quarters. Intertek stands to benefit from the re-opening of economies as companies seek help in meeting sustainability goals and fortifying supply chains post-pandemic. At Domino's, the resolution of a long-running dispute with its franchisees has enabled both store openings to recommence and a system-wide approach to pricing to be implemented. Both Intertek and Domino's have strong balance sheets and well covered dividends, giving plenty of optionality to their management teams to either invest further or return surplus cash to shareholders.

In short, the Fund's companies are in good shape despite the complex current environment. Near-term impacts may vary by business, but we are confident that the portfolio is resilient and capable of growing dividends, which will ultimately be reflected in the capital and income returns received by our investors.
