June Commentary

Your Fund delivered a total return of -0.4% during the month compared to +1.5% for the FTSE All-Share Index (TR). The first week of June saw a continuation of the rally from the March lows, led by the more 'cyclical recovery' areas of the market which are not widely held in the portfolio.

This final burst of optimism was short-lived however, and the growing feeling that equity markets, particularly in the US, could not sustain the rally proved correct. US and UK equities fell sharply in the second week of June as fresh pockets of COVID-19 cases emerged, testing the viability of relaxations to lockdown restrictions.

The economic outlook and path to a return of societal norms remain unknown, and we do not consider ourselves able to call these short-term trends better than anyone else. However, we take comfort in the knowledge that regardless of the market's moods over the coming weeks or months, the direction of travel for the Fund remains unchanged. As long-term investors, we have to be comfortable that companies held in the portfolio can withstand varied economic pressures, providing attractive returns through many different environments. The extraordinary nature of the global pandemic has, for us, only stressed this point further. Therefore, recent changes to the portfolio have continued to improve quality and resilience, with any new holdings being viewed as long-term contributors to the Fund's capital and income returns, as opposed to any attempt to 'play' any short-term market recovery or volatility.

Specific changes in the month included additions to quality UK names such as Diageo, Experian and Intertek. We also made additions to several names in the Fund's important overseas allocation, including Nestlé, Paychex and Medtronic. The latter was initiated as a new position for the Fund in March. It is a business well known to Troy, being already held across our global and multi-asset mandates, and combines a highly attractive financial profile with structural growth tailwinds.

While the wave of dividend cuts has abated for the time being, the income landscape of the UK equity market will have been indelibly changed by the pandemic. We have been concerned for some time that this adjustment was inevitable. We continue to shape the portfolio to deliver resilient future income growth from a new base. The addition of Medtronic is a good exemplar of this process.
