March Commentary

The Fund produced a return of +4.0% during the month compared to a return of +4.0% for the FTSE All-Share Index (TR). We frequently espouse the virtues of the Consumer Staples sector. ~25% of your Fund is exposed to beloved consumer brands, from dog treats to deodorant, Kit-Kats to condoms, and baby food to bourbon. The latter category, spirits, is represented by our holding in Diageo and is an area that excites us. Spirits have taken share from beer and wine for a number of years, with premium and 'super premium' variants growing the fastest. Diageo owns some of the finest spirits brands in the world, and benefits accordingly.

While we generally view the sheer variety of products owned by the staples giants like Diageo as a source of comfort, such diversity also means that these businesses may not be the fastest growers in the portfolio. However, we think we can find faster growth, still achieved through a loved staples brand and benefitting from the same trends, through a holding started last June – Fever-Tree.

Fever-Tree is the leading premium mixer brand globally. It has been an extraordinary success – they have created a new category and curated a novel brand, capitalising on consumer interest in provenance and quality, and a willingness to 'go premium' for indulgences such as drinking spirits. This success has catapulted Fever-Tree products into more UK households than any other mixer, overtaking Schweppes. This is a major feat for a young brand, and a premium one at that.

Although Fever-Tree made its name riding the British gin renaissance with its tonic, they now offer a full range of mixers, including flavoured tonics, gingers, sodas, lemonades, colas, and light varieties. With this armoury, the company continues to expand, with ~60% of sales outside the UK last year and gaining share in almost every market they are present. We are particularly enthused that Fever-Tree is selected to be the mixer of choice by several of the world's largest spirits companies and distributors. A global agreement with Diageo means that any time a mixer and a Diageo spirit are 'co-promoted', that mixer is almost certainly from Fever-Tree.

While ~50% of sales typically come from the 'on-trade' (e.g. bars, restaurants), it is testament to the strength of underlying growth that sales declined only -3% last year, despite lockdowns. We believe there is a lot more growth to come as Fever-Tree's markets recover and their global expansion continues. Following recent weakness and a positive meeting with management, we added to the holding.
