January Commentary

Your Fund delivered a return of -1.8% during the month of January compared to -0.8% for the FTSE All-Share Index (TR).

The start of the year was characterised by a strong sense of optimism. Vaccine data continued to provide hope that an end to the pandemic was in sight and the newly agreed trade deal between the UK and the EU supported a relief rally in domestic equities and sterling. On the other side of the Atlantic, order and due process finally prevailed, replacing the destabilising forces that had hitherto marred America's transition to a new President.

All of this supported a continuation of the 'risk-on' trends that had dominated the final months of 2020. During the first five trading days of the year, the FTSE All-Share rose over 5%, led by a slew of more cyclical and indebted companies pricing in a reopening of the economy. At the same time, investors reduced positions in the more stable investments that had served them best through the pandemic. During such periods, the portfolio's performance can often appear pedestrian on a relative basis and the opening days of the 2021 were no exception.

However, periods in which higher quality companies fall out of favour can provide opportunities to patient investors. Although Reckitt Benckiser delivered strong returns through the first half of 2020, the shares gave back these gains in the final quarter. This retrenchment reflected a wider market rotation rather than a fundamental deterioration in the underlying performance of the company. With a free cash flow* yield once again closing on 5%, we chose to add to this top 10 portfolio holding in the expectation that it can continue to grow its dividend at an attractive rate for many years.

After such an aggressive rally, recent weeks have shown signs that exuberance may be giving way to more circumspect behaviour as it becomes apparent that the pandemic will be a constraint on the economy for some time yet. Whatever the prevailing conditions, we will continue to seek out the opportunities that arise from short-term mispricing to strengthen the long-term income and growth prospects of your portfolio.

*The FCF yield is the free cash flow generated by the company divided by its market value.
